Anti-discrimination resources

The following resources have been designed to build capacity of students, faculty and staff to address discrimination and uphold human rights at UBC.

The development of these resources was guided by several principles, including grounding the materials in the Canadian human rights legal framework, the B.C. Human Rights Code, UBC policies and the mandate of the Equity & Inclusion Office.

Access resources

Introduction to UBC's Human Rights Obligations & Discrimination Policy

Learn about UBC's human rights framework, policies, and strategies for recognizing, responding to, and referring cases of discrimination. As introductory material, this resource should be reviewed before engaging with the other resources in this series.
